TEN C PRESENTS ITS FALL / WINTER 2026

The new Ten c A/W 26/27 collection, designed by Alessandro Pungetti, is inspired by the urban explorer and is composed of looks that blend the vintage charm of the military world with high-tech fabrics, telling a story of evolution and research. Materials remain at the heart of the collection, the language through which this contemporary exploration takes shape.

The palette stays rooted in military tones and is expanded with ivory, taupe, anthracite grey, olive green and touches of lime, which add brightness. This confirms the brand's distinctive approach to colour, which plays a narrative rôle throughout the collections.

OJJ (Original Japanese Jersey) — the brand's iconic fabric — returns as a key protagonist and is reinterpreted in new aesthetic and functional variations. Garment-dyed in its most authentic version, it features a patinated texture that adds chromatic depth, highlighting Ten c's artisanal identity. Piece-dyed and washed, it takes on a softer, more lived-in feel, introducing new styles with a contemporary military soul. In its down-filled version, the new OJJ gives life to new silhouettes, always inspired by the military world, while ensuring superior thermal performance. The offering is completed by the OJJ ultralight 9 oz with Primaloft insulation: maximum comfort, lightness and fast drying. A seasonal new entry is also the OJJ Rubber Ultralight, waterproof thanks to internal taped seams, developed for the Kirkwool Anorak, Arran Jacket and Mailand Parka. These three styles interact with new detachable down interiors featuring large diamond quilting, also wearable as mid-layers.

From a materials perspective, the collection also introduces technical nylon and ultralight down jackets: extremely lightweight, garment-dyed, with a soft hand and rich colour density. Two new styles in matte nylon feature detachable felt hoods, while the classic Nylon Crinkle Combo OJJ returns, with its structured surface and strong military identity.

Knitwear takes centre stage, with larger volumes, rich textures and materials that combine warmth and function. Enveloping chenille, three-dimensional bouclé, stretch felted wool and heavy-gauge lambswool define a new balance between performance and tactility. The new knits dialogue seamlessly with outerwear — a long-standing brand staple — and play a central role in building the total look.

Urban Explorer introduces a new chromatic narrative — plaster white, desert sage, asphalt grey and matte black — designed for those who move through the city with a quiet step, seeking out its most hidden corners. Outerwear, mid-layers, trousers and accessories: each piece tells the transition from a technical past to an urban present, where function becomes aesthetic and material, through fit and colour, becomes language. For the padded category, specifically designed for contemporary Urban Explorers, the collection includes two models in Nylon Crinkle Combo OJJ and garment-dyed Nylon Tactel.

The Skye Ten Anorak, a signature piece, returns as a symbol of the fusion between the military and urban worlds. New variations reinterpret the garment with technical materials, Primaloft insulation and patterns inspired by urban design, paving and architectural surfaces.

Ten c garments are designed to accompany everyday exploration and to stand the test of time: the city changes, Ten c evolves with those who live it.

ABOUT TEN C

Ten c — The Emperor's New Clothes — is part of the Veneto-based FGF INDUSTRY SPA group headed by Enzo Fusco. The brand, which first rose to prominence for its luxury no-logo outerwear made with the iconic patented fabric OJJ (Original Japanese Jersey), has been working over the past few seasons on the challenge of developing a total look. Ten c is currently distributed in 120 selected boutiques and multi-brand stores around the world, 80% of which are outside of Italy.
