oqLiq SS26 – INTERLACE
London Fashion Week Digital Schedule

As we move, pause, and transition through space, our bodies constantly interact with the layered rhythms of the contemporary city. For Spring/Summer 2026, oqLiq presents INTERLACE, a collection that frames clothing as a dynamic interface between the body and its environment—exploring how we exist within shifting states and overlapping domains.

Continuing oqLiq's research into modular thinking and adaptable structures, the series applies dislocated paneling, transparent-to-solid fabric layering, and stacked geometric compositions to express a sense of structured disorder. Cutting is treated not as a stylistic gesture but as a structural syntax, enabling garments to adjust fluidly to varying temperatures, contexts, and movement—forming a wearable spatial system.

In material development, the collection integrates natural fibers such as cotton and TENCEL™ with advanced technical fabrics that are water-repellent, breathable, and lightweight. Through this interplay, layered textures emerge that balance softness with structure, breathable silhouettes shift with airflow and motion, and surfaces blur the line between nature and the synthetic.

The AI-powered virtual show further extends oqLiq's vision, positioning INTERLACE as not only a collection of garments but also a reimagining of the relationship between clothing, movement, and spatial experience. In this sense, oqLiq's digital presentation becomes an extension of the brand's will, redefining how fashion narratives unfold at London Fashion Week.

Founded in Taiwan, oqLiq has established itself internationally through its commitment to sustainability, functional design, and technological exploration. With INTERLACE, the brand proposes a new approach to dressing—one that breathes, responds, and evolves with the body and the world around it.
